101 Mill Street

This house is one of the newer structures on Mill Street, having been built in 1938 by Armond and Jeanette Hayward. It is smaller and has a simpler architectural style than most of the street's other houses, which date from the period 1890-1914. The structure is similar to 103 Mill Street; both are illustrations of middle-class frame dwellings built between the two world wars. Architecturally, it does not conflict with the older houses on Mill Street.
